

Are you worried about your mortgage? Get advice now

If you are struggling to pay your mortgage, or you think it will be difficult to pay more when your fixed-rate deal ends, act now to stop your situation becoming worse.

Sometimes when your circumstances change – for example you work less hours, become sick, receive a cut in your pay, lose your job or have high bills to pay – life seems impossible. Don't let your debt problems get on top of you. Get the advice and help you need to prevent you from losing your home.

Not knowing who to talk to is half of the problem. You will be able to get free, confidential and independent advice from the organisations that we have listed at the back of our leaflet. Please remember, the earlier you get advice, the better it will be.

This leaflet provides step-by-step information to help you begin to sort out your money worries and to make other arrangements for paying your mortgage and keeping your home.

1 Don't ignore the problem

When you receive a letter or phone call from your mortgage lender, never ignore it. If you don't understand the letter, don't be afraid to ask your lender or speak to a debt adviser at your local Shelter advice service or Citizens Advice Bureau.

If you have a fixed-term rate that will be ending soon, you'll get a letter from the lender warning you of when the interest rate and monthly payment will change, and how much your new repayment will be. Don't ignore the letter.

Your mortgage debt is a priority, so make sure you pay this before all other debts. Don't panic and take out another loan to help catch up with your mortgage payments. Get advice instead.

2 Look at your situation and check what help you can get

Take a good look at what you are spending money on. Ask yourself the following questions.

- Can I cut back on my spending without having to struggle?
- Can I get a better deal on my mortgage?
- Am I behind on any other loans secured against my home?
- Can I change the way I am paying my other debts that are not a priority, by talking to the people I owe money to?
- Would an agreed 'payment holiday' or changing to 'interest only' payments help me pay my mortgage?
- Is my home worth more or less than the amount I borrowed to buy it?
- Is my loan regulated by the Consumer Credit Act and can I take action to reduce payments or extend the term of the mortgage in the short-term?
- Do I have mortgage payment protection insurance (MPPI) that I can make a claim on?

Visit or phone your local advice agency (for example, a Shelter advice service or Citizens Advice Bureau) to make an appointment to see a debt adviser. You may see advertisements for independent financial advisers who provide money advice, but these people may charge you for their services, so you must always check first.

When you go to see the adviser, take with you all relevant information on your monthly household income and costs, any benefits you receive and loan payments you are making. The adviser will:

- check that you are getting all the money you and your family should receive
- find out if you are entitled to help with your housing costs or other benefits from the Department for Work and Pensions

- look into any other help you may be able to receive
- help you tell the lender about the problems you are having
- come up with ways to manage your debt, and
- may help you legally if court action has started.

3 Talk to your lender

If there's a problem and you cannot pay your monthly mortgage payments in full, you should tell the lender immediately. They should be sympathetic and can help if you let them know as early as possible that you have money problems. Be honest with them about what is causing the problems. Your lender will have experience of working with borrowers to help solve problems like this, and it may be possible to reduce your monthly payments for a time.

It is important to contact your lender. If the lender doesn't know why you're not paying and doesn't hear from you, they are likely to start legal action to repossess your home. And, even if possession action begins, you may still be given extra time to prevent you losing your home (for example, while waiting for help from the Department for Work and Pensions, waiting for a payment from your mortgage payment protection insurance, or while waiting to go back to work).

4 Show that you are willing to pay what you can

To keep your home, you must keep payments going. If you are having problems, work out your budget and look at ways of making savings or cutting back. If your lender knows you are trying your best to pay the loan, they should give you more time to sort out your money problems.

If you have any debts (arrears) but then, after looking at your budget and making changes or making the most of your income you find you are able to pay from now on, contact the lender and offer to pay any outstanding debts. You can make payments over a reasonable period, as well as paying your usual monthly payments.

Always contact your lender to tell them about your plan to repay any debt. If you can't pay now, but will be able to at a later date, let the lender know. If the lender does not agree to your plan, don't panic. Tell them you will speak with your local advice agency and contact a Shelter advice service or Citizens Advice Bureau immediately.

Continue to make payments that you know you can afford, and tell your lender why you are only able to afford this much. This shows them that you are willing to make an effort to pay and increases your chances of keeping your home.

If you cannot pay at all – for example, if you lose your job or become ill – don't panic. Don't avoid speaking to your lender and don't simply hand them the keys to your home – get advice straightaway. Only hand back your keys if you have sold the property or there is a court order to evict you, because you still have to pay the loan and insurances until you or the lender sells your home.

5 Find out what your options are

Mortgage lenders should only take possession action as a last option. If you took out your mortgage after October 2004, there are rules that lenders must follow. The rules explain how lenders are expected to help borrowers who are having money problems. If you are unhappy with how your lender has been dealing with you, including if you think your lender is ignoring these rules, you can complain to the Financial Ombudsman Service.

Your lender should think about what they can do to prevent you losing your home. For example, they may:

- agree to change or lengthen the term of your loan
- accept reduced payments from you in the short term, or
- add your debt to the amount you have borrowed.

A lender can:

- reduce your monthly payments for a certain period
- cut the charges they make to you for being in debt with your mortgage
- extend the time of your loan (this reduces the amount of your monthly payment but you will be making payments over a longer period, and so paying more for your home)
- spread repayment of the total amount you owe (including debts over the remaining period of your mortgage)
- put off part of your repayment, allowing you to make 'interest only' payments for a short period (only if you have a repayment mortgage)
- offer you a better loan rate, and
- allow you time to sell your home, if that's what you want. (Think very carefully about this because you need somewhere to live, and you may not get help from your local council if they consider that you've made yourself 'intentionally homeless'.)

Any changes to your mortgage can lead to penalties or charges, which may cost more to repay in the long term. If you are worried about how your household will be affected by these changes, ask a Shelter adviser or your local Citizens Advice Bureau. Whatever you arrange may only be a short-term solution, so as time goes on, your lender will want to keep in regular contact with you and want to know about any changes in your circumstances.

6 Make the right decision for you and your family's future

Before you and your lender agree any change to your mortgage repayment, get the lender to tell you about the problems that may arise in the future from what you are planning. You must reach a decision that the lender agrees to and that takes you or your family's circumstances into account.

It may help to talk with family members or friends who have recently dealt with similar changes to their mortgage. You may also be able to speak to other mortgage lenders on the high street, to see if there is a better interest rate or mortgage package that could be available to you by 'remortgaging'.

Avoid signing up to schemes that appear too good to be true because they probably are:

Companies that buy your home and rent it back to you are offering 'rent back' or 'sell to let' schemes. Although these are legal, they are not regulated properly. Selling your house to this type of scheme may pay off your debts, but you will no longer own your home. Your new landlord may increase your rent, making it too expensive, or ask you to leave after six or 12 months.

If you sell your home to one of these schemes, you may not be able to claim Housing Benefit if you are on a low income or if you lose your job.

If the company that bought your home gets into financial problems and cannot pay the mortgage, you may be evicted. Most of these schemes will offer you less than the actual value of your home.

Please get advice from your local Shelter advice service or Citizens Advice Bureau before you sign up to one of these schemes. If, after taking advice and finding out about all the help that is available you realise you will not be able to keep your home, you should sell your home. Deciding to sell your home yourself is better, because it makes the most of any potential equity (the difference between how much your property is worth and the amount you owe on your mortgage). You must check for any extra costs with your mortgage deal, and consider whether or not you will get the right price for your home, to cover your financial needs (for example, the costs of moving) as well as paying off the mortgage.

Before taking steps to sell, always get advice. This is very important, because in some circumstances you may be seen to have made yourself 'intentionally homeless' (for example, if you sell your home when it could have been saved). If this happens, the council may not have a duty to rehouse you.
